I come up Olive exit on I-5 and it curves to John on Broadway by the light rail station, then keep going to 11th Ave. and turn right until you hit our parking lot. Protestors set up a movable barricade. They let everyone pass and trucks for deliveries, but it feels like a check-point. It's BS. Supposedly, the city is going to try and take back the neighborhood any day. That should get ugly. I'd have to come by but nothings open for lunch. It's boarded up for blocks around us.

Met with the mayor's office and the Fire Chief. The police will be coming back and the prediction is that it will get worse before it gets better. The protestors let everyone past their barricades, but it's intimidating. Garbage hasn't been picked up and we're putting it everywhere and anywhere we can. It's supposed to get picked up today at 7AM, now.

The exterior of the building is shot.

I'm here all day. So far, so good, this morning.
